tion of multinational companies and Wockhardt Hospitals itself is a flagship company of - the multinational - Wockhardt Group; it understands the rigors through which various corporate houses go through while achieving and maintaining operational excellence in their respective domains. Hence, periodically conducting such Management Development Programmes (MDPs) - in the form of corporate meets - for its corporate associates was decided.

Other than its normal health-care offerings, conducting corporate meets is a modest and an earnest attempt from Wockhardt Hospitals to be of some use to its corporate colleagues in adding value to their functioning and existence. Being a trusted health-care partner of leading MNCs in Nashik, the hospital will be organizing such more corporate events for its corporate customers in near future as well. Continuous, practical exposure to contemporary management techniques and practices go a long way in ensuring the operational and economical success of any organization and Wockhardt

Hospitals, Nashik will go all the way to ensure that its corporate clients get all the success they need and desire, he said.

Anil Kamat, Managing Director, Wockhardt Hospitals spoke on how to reduce your organisation's medical costs, while globally renowned management thinker Dr Shailesh Thaker spoke on the 11 rules to increase your business in 21st century.

On the sidelines of the corporate meet, Shailesh Kamat explained to media persons how Wockhardt was established not with a proposition of business but for catering to the health problems of the society and how it was growing from strength to strength to provide world class medical facilities outside the metro cities and even bring a sense of wellness even among the rural masses.
